

There are five people in the picture. I guess they are a family on the beach, because I can see the blue sky in the background. They look like a family, but they don't look happy together, because each one is doing something different. The father seems a bit crazy.

They are all wearing summer clothes. The mother is wearing a nice purple top, while the father is wearing a pink shirt. The two sisters are wearing cardigans of different colours on top of a dark dress, but the younger brother is wearing a green polo shirt.

This picture must be from last summer. The family were on holidays in Benidorm and they took this picture after lunch. They were deciding where to go sightseeing. The father wanted to go pubbing, but the mother felt tired. The older sister wanted to meet some friends to hang out in the evening, and the younger sister wanted to go with her too. The younger brother was playing video games. After the picture was taken, they went back to the hotel.

This family looks very much like my own family. I also have two sisters and they are always together, so I am usually bored with my parents. My older sister is also texting her friends all the time -and I also play video games-

To sum up, they have a communication problem. The mother is too stressed, while the father is cheerful and relaxed. Their kids want to do different things, so I think they should spend their holidays separately next time.
