Countable Nouns	Uncountable nouns
Countable nouns have both a singular and a plural form.	Uncountable nouns do not usually have a plural form an apple - two apples a camel - two camels	bread, rice, coffee, tea, water, (You can not use a/an with uncountable nouns.)

We usually use some in affirmative sentences for both countable and uncountable nouns.

• I would like to buy some apples please. (countable)

 Please give me some coffee. (uncountable)

You usually use any in negative sentences and questions, for both countable and uncountable nouns.

- We don't have any apples.
 (negative sentence with countable noun)
 Are there any apples?
 (negative question with countable noun)
- There isn't any coffee. (negative sentence with uncountable noun)
- Is there any coffee? (negative question with uncountable noun)
- You usually use many in negative sentences and questions (for countable nouns.)
- You usually use much in negative sentences and questions (for uncountable nouns.)
- We don't have many apples.
- There isn't much coffee.
- How many camels did you see?
- How much coffee should I buy?

If the uncountable noun is the subject, the verb is singular not plural. eg. "Coffee is good with cake"

Too much/ many + noun	Too + adjective
 There's too much noise. There are too much people. 	 The sea is too polluted.
Not enough + noun	Not + adjective + enough
Thous ion!! amount

- There isn't enough farmland.
